

Course Concept Ballroom

Revision 10 - September 2023

General

This concept is meant to give Tanzquotient's Ballroom teachers a guideline on course objectives and options. Thus, we want to make sure that students changing courses, changing teachers, or taking a break will still find consistent content.

Generally, adapt your teaching to the group. Some groups are faster than others. Also, the learning speed within a group will be inhomogeneous. We encourage you to use gender-neutral language such as lead and follow instead of man and lady. Respect everyone's personal space and always ask permission before touching a student to show a move.

Usually, dancing with different partners improves the learning process. Ask your students to change partners. It is an important aspect of social dancing. Moreover, dance with your students now and then as it allows finding problems more easily and individually. If you find a problem occurring for a majority, treat it as a general topic. However, never name or blame people for mistakes. If your group is interested in details, you may provide them if suitable for the group's level. Feel free to refuse if it is too far out of scope.

Please record what you taught. If you are e.g. on holiday and need a substitutional teacher or would like to hand over your group, the other teacher needs some information about the group's history.

Course contents

Please teach all figures marked in bold. We put down some suggestions in regular font. You are welcome to teach them as well. Please do not teach figures that are part of a higher level or not mentioned below. As for technique, please cover all the points stated for the given course.

Standard and Latin are taught according to International Style. You may refer to the technique books by ISTD, IDTA, or dancecentral.info for more information.

Technique

- Basic dancing hold: Position of hands, arms not hanging down.
- Closed position for standard dances: Feet positions of Leader/Follower are shifted
- Dance directions: counterclockwise around the room. If stationary, go to the center of the dance floor to avoid collisions.
- Orientations: Explain in Line of Dance, Diagonal Wall/Center.
- How to do corners in English Waltz: Underturn works, overturning never works (implies: no corners with reverse turn). You should under-turn natural or do 2x natural turn in corner.
- Heel- and Ballsteps: mention Heelstep & Ballstep where applicable
- Counts for different dances. Point out their differences.
- Step size: If the dance is fast, make smaller steps.
- Discofox: Different versions/styles of the basic step exist (backstep vs. tapping)

Technique

- Turning Fast like Viennese Waltz
 - Focus on a spot to avoid getting dizzy.
 - Distance between partners & inertia (closer: easier turning - consent is key)
- Rise & Fall. Standard dances should not be “jumped”, use inner thigh muscles.
Exercise: Stand on both feet, feet apart. Pull the feet together below yourself using your inner thigh muscles, this is the same action as for the “sidesteps” in Quickstep. Note that Viennese Waltz has much less Rise & Fall than Slow Waltz.
- Degrees of Turning showcased by the Natural Spin Turn in English Waltz. Explain underturned vs full-turn variations of the figure.
- Pivot & Brush action of the Natural Spin Turn.
- Feet positions Slightly turned out forming a V-shape (Latin) vs. parallel (Standard)
- Outside position showcased by the Quickstep basic step.
- Dance Characteristic Cha Cha vs. Jive vs. Tango vs. ...
- Head Motion and contrast between Waltz and Tango

 - In Tango it is sharp and accentuated (Staccato)

- Drive Step (Power) in standard dances. Pick one dance to explain the drive step and apply it to the remaining standard dances afterwards.
- Collection (Balance): especially for English Waltz.
- Viennese Waltz: How to do corners & why reverse turn corners do not work (well)
- Samba Technique: Bounce, and Ball Change (Whisk, Criss Cross Bota Fogos)
